The Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation Staff

In 1903, Lynde and Harry Bradley established a new business in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. It took courage and confidence for them to risk resources in a new venture, based only on their judgment of what was and their vision of what could be. The Bradleys' confidence was bolstered by the knowledge that in America, not only were they free to start a business, they could also begin again if they failed. The Bradleys, however, would not fail. Their business grew to become the internationally recognized Allen-Bradley Company.

When the Allen-Bradley Company was acquired by Rockwell International Corporation in 1985, a significant portion of the proceeds was dedicated to establishing The Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation. Although it has no direct ties to the Allen-Bradley Company, the purpose of the Foundation is to commemorate Lynde and Harry Bradley by preserving and extending the principles and philosophy by which they lived and upon which they built their company. As their efforts succeeded, their business grew and eventually extended far beyond its Milwaukee headquarters. Lynde and Harry Bradley remained devoted to the city where they began their enterprise and in which they lived and worked for so many years. Thus, the Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation is proud to continue its commitment to improving the quality of life in the Milwaukee metropolitan area and throughout southeastern Wisconsin.

The Bradleys lived and worked according to several philosophical principles. They believed that, over time, the consequences of ideas were more decisive than the force of political or economic movements. They recognized the interdependence of human endeavors – cultural, educational, philosophical, economic – and they rejected exclusionary emphasis on any single element. The brothers had an abiding belief in the dignity and decency of each person. They felt that only in an environment of political and economic freedom could individuals develop their talents, hone their skills and intellects, and contribute to the improvement of the human condition. The success of the Allen-Bradley Company stands as eloquent testimony to the enduring quality of these principles.

The Bradley brothers were committed to preserving and defending the tradition of free representative government and private enterprise that has also enabled the American nation and, in a larger sense, the entire Western world to flourish intellectually and economically. The Bradleys believed that the good society is a free society. The Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation is likewise devoted to strengthening American democratic capitalism and the institutions, principles and values that sustain and nurture it. Its programs support limited, competent government; a dynamic marketplace for economic, intellectual, and cultural activity; and a vigorous defense at home and abroad of American ideas and institutions. In addition, recognizing that responsible self-government depends on enlightened citizens and informed public opinion, the Foundation supports scholarly studies and academic achievement.

The Foundation's Board, on occasion, undertakes to define and redefine its current program interests. At present, the Foundation aims to encourage projects that focus on cultivating a renewed, healthier, and more vigorous sense of citizenship among the American people, and among peoples of other nations, as well.

The free society so central to the convictions and success of the Bradley brothers rests upon and is intended to nurture a solid foundation of competent, self-governing citizens, who are understood to be fully capable of and personally responsible for making the major political, economic, and moral decisions that shape their own lives, and the lives of their children. Such decisions are made on the basis of common sense, received wisdom, traditional values, and everyday moral understandings, which are in turn nurtured and passed on to future generations by healthy families, churches, neighborhoods, voluntary associations, schools, and other value-generating “mediating structures.”

This expansive understanding of citizenship is being challenged today, however, by contemporary forces and ideas that regard individuals more as passive and helpless victims of powerful external forces than as personally responsible, self-governing citizens, and that foster a deep skepticism about citizenly values and mediating structures. Consequently, authority and accountability tend to flow away from citizens toward centralized, bureaucratic, “service-providing” institutions that claim to be peculiarly equipped to cope with those external forces on behalf of their “clients.” This systematic disenfranchisement of the citizen, and the consequent erosion of citizenly mediating structures, pose grave threats to the free society that the Bradley brothers cherished.

In light of these considerations, projects likely to be supported by the Foundation will generally share these assumptions:

- ☞ They will treat free men and women as genuinely self-governing, personally responsible citizens, not as victim-sor clients.
- ☞ They will aim to restore the intellectual and cultural legitimacy of citizenly common sense, the received wisdom of experience, everyday morality, and personal character, refurbishing their roles as reliable guideposts of everyday life.
- ☞ They will seek to reinvigorate and reempower the traditional, local institutions – families, schools, churches, and neighborhoods – that provide training in and room for the exercise of genuine citizenship, that pass on everyday morality to the next generation, and that cultivate personal character.
- ☞ They will encourage decentralization of power and accountability away from centralized, bureaucratic, national institutions back to the states, localities, and revitalized mediating structures where citizenship is more fully realized.

In addition to these thematic considerations, eligible projects will exhibit these features:

- ✧ They may address any arena of public life – economics, politics, culture, or civil society – where citizenship as here understood is an important issue. It is important to note that our view of citizenship is not primarily concerned with promoting civics education, voter awareness or turn-out, or similar activities narrowly focused on voting and elections.
- ✧ They may address the problem of citizenship at home or abroad, where the fall of many (and the perpetuation of some) totalitarian regimes has made this issue particularly urgent.
- ✧ In light of our emphasis on decentralization, and considering the Foundation’s deep roots in Milwaukee and Wisconsin – areas with proud traditions of innovation and experimentation in democratic citizenship – community and state projects will be of particular interest to us. Such projects will aim to improve the life of the community through increasing cultural and educational opportunities, grass-roots economic development, and effective and humane social and health services, reflecting where possible the Foundation’s focus on the resuscitation of citizenship.
- ✧ Projects may be actual demonstrations of the resuscitation of citizenship in the economic, political, cultural, or social realms; policy research and writing about approaches encouraging that resuscitation; academic research and writing that explore the intellectual roots of citizenship, its decline, and prospects for revival; and popular writing and media projects that illustrate for a broader public audience the themes of citizenship.

Much of the creative and energetic leadership essential for a renewal of citizenship will be supplied by gifted individuals, who must receive challenging and stimulating programs and instruction at all levels of their education. The Foundation supports programs that research the needs of gifted children and techniques of providing education for students with superior skills and/or intelligence. Research programs investigating how learning occurs in gifted children and demonstration programs of instruction are to be considered.

The programs and funding decisions of the Bradley Foundation are the responsibility of the Board of Directors. At the discretion of the Board, the policies set forth herein will be modified in response to changing conditions and priorities.

The guidelines established by the Board of Directors will normally preclude funding for unspecified and undetailed overhead costs. No funds will be authorized for fees payable to fund-raising counsel. In addition, grants without significant import to the Foundation's areas of interest will only under special conditions be considered for endowment or deficit-financing purposes.

The Foundation will:

- Normally award grants only to organizations and institutions exempt from federal taxation under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and publicly supported under Section 509(a)(1), (2) or (3);
- Favor projects that are not normally financed by public tax funds;
- Consider requests for building projects and limit grants to a fraction of the total cost.

Grantees must possess the resources to properly administer grants from the Foundation. The Foundation conducts an annual evaluation of grants, and grantees are asked to provide periodic reports on the progress of their work.

Application Procedure

Two steps are required in the application process. First, the applicant should prepare a brief letter of inquiry to the Grants Program, describing the applying organization and its intended project. If the Foundation determines the project to be within the current program interests as determined by its Board of Directors, the applicant will be invited to submit a formal proposal.

Second, if invited to submit a formal proposal, the applicant should submit another letter. It should include a more-thorough, yet still concise description of the project, its objectives and significance, and the qualifications of the groups and individuals involved in it. It should also include a project budget, the specific amount being sought from the Bradley Foundation, and a list of other sources of support, philanthropic or otherwise.

The applicant should submit a copy of the Internal Revenue Service letter confirming the applying entity's tax-exempt and public-support status under Sections 501(c)(3) and 509(a), respectively, of the Internal Revenue Code.

Should the Foundation's program staff find it necessary or desirable, it may arrange a meeting with the applicant after the receipt of a written proposal. After the staff comprehensively reviews proposals, the Board acts on them. All grantmaking authority rests with the Board.

The Board of Directors meets four times a year. To be considered, full proposals should be submitted by February 1, May 1, August 1, and November 1. In most cases, staff is able to complete its reviews of proposals in time for the next scheduled Board meeting. Occasionally, it is not, or Board consideration is deferred to a later meeting.

Because of the necessarily limited resources of the Foundation, many worthwhile projects cannot be supported, of course. The demands on the Foundation's resources also limit the size of particular grants and the ability of the Foundation to make commitments for extended periods. For more information about the Bradley Foundation, including our guidelines for submitting proposals, please visit our website at www.bradleyfdn.org.

Bradley Prizes 2014

Milwaukee's Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation awarded its 2014 Bradley Prizes to Georgetown University Law Professor Randy E. Barnett, Goldwater Institute President Darcy Olsen, Wall Street Journal columnist Kimberly A. Strassel, and Wall Street Journal drama critic and Commentary critic-at-large Terry Teachout in an inspiring and entertaining ceremony at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., on June 18. The $250,000 prizes recognize and celebrate the honorees' achievements in areas consistent with the Foundation's mission – the promotion of liberal democracy, democratic capitalism, and the defense of American ideas and institutions at home and abroad.

2014 Bradley Prizes award recipients

Randy E. Barnett is the Carmack Waterhouse Professor of Legal Theory at the Georgetown University Law Center, where he teaches constitutional law and contracts and is the founding director of the Georgetown Center for the Constitution. A graduate of Northwestern University and Harvard Law School, he began his career as a prosecutor in the Cook County States' Attorney's Office in Chicago. A 2008 recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship in Constitutional Studies, Professor Barnett has been a visiting professor at Harvard Law School, the University of Pennsylvania, Northwestern, and the Universidad Francisco Marroquín in Guatemala. In 2011, he received the Charles G. Koch Outstanding Institute for Humane Studies Alum Award. Professor Barnett's publications include eleven books, more than one hundred articles and reviews, and numerous opinion pieces. In 2012, he represented the National Federation of Independent Business in its constitutional challenge to the Affordable Care Act. Previously, he argued important cases before the U.S. Supreme Court and U.S. Courts of Appeals. Professor Barnett frequently appears on network and cable news programs.

Darcy Olsen is President of the Goldwater Institute, a public policy research and legal center. Her leadership has been critical to the Institute's success, including the development and enactment of nearly 200 reforms and the protection of multiple constitutional rights in state and federal courts. Her vision has made the Goldwater Institute a national leader in restoring America as a compound republic, where states exercise their constitutional authority to check and limit federal power. An authority on education reform, economic policy, and government reform, Ms. Olsen is a regular guest on national public affairs programs. Her opinions have been widely published in news outlets such as The Wall Street Journal, USA Today, and National Review. Ms. Olsen has received numerous honors, including the State Policy Network's Roe Award for achievement in public policy. One of her most unexpected awards occurred when Hockey Magazine named her the "64th most powerful person in hockey" for her leading role in blocking a multi-million subsidy to a National Hockey League team. Ms. Olsen is a graduate of Georgetown University and New York University.

Bradley Prizes

Kimberley Strassel is a member of the editorial board for The Wall Street Journal. She writes editorials as well as the weekly Potomac Watch political column. Ms. Strassel joined Dow Jones & Company in 1994, working with The Wall Street Journal Europe's Central European Economic Review in Brussels. She moved to London in 1996 and in 1999 transferred to New York to cover commercial real estate. Soon thereafter, she joined the Journal's editorial page, working as a features editor and then as an editorial writer. She assumed her current position in 2005. Ms. Strassel was a finalist for a Loeb award in 2005 and again in 2007 for her investigative reporting. In 2001, she received a Front Page Award for Internet commentary from the Newswomen's Club of New York. In Washington, Ms. Strassel is a regular contributor to Fox News Sunday, NBC's Meet the Press, and ABC's This Week. She is a co-author of Leaving Women Behind: Modern Families, Outdated Laws, which argues that government regulation interferes with free market incentives to provide women with economic opportunity. An Oregon native, Ms. Strassel earned a bachelor's degree in public policy and international affairs from Princeton University.

Terry Teachout is the drama critic of The Wall Street Journal, the critic-at-large of Commentary, and the author of Sightings, a biweekly column for the Friday Journal about the arts in America. He also writes about the arts for National Review and other magazines. His first play, Satchmo at the Waldorf, was premiered in 2011 in Orlando, Florida, and has since been produced off-Broadway and regionally. Mr. Teachout is the author of Duke: A Life of Duke Ellington; Pops: A Life of Louis Armstrong; All in the Dances: A Brief Life of George Balanchine; A Terry Teachout Reader, and The Skeptic: A Life of H.L. Mencken. He has also written the libretti for three operas by Paul Moravec and is the editor of Beyond the Boom: New Voices on American Life, Culture, and Politics and Ghosts on the Roof: Selected Journalism of Whittaker Chambers, 1931-1959. He was a contributor to The Oxford Companion to Jazz and Robert Gottlieb's Reading Dance and has written track notes for Jazz: The Smithsonian Anthology. Mr. Teachout served on the National Council on the Arts from 2004 to 2010. In 2012, he was a MacDowell Colony Fellow and received a Guggenheim Fellowship to support the completion of Duke.

Bradley Directors with the 2014 Bradley Prizes award recipients

In the bustle of daily politics, it can be difficult to discern the broad trends that will shape America's future. The 2014 Bradley Symposium in Washington, D.C., convened experts to help us see past the horizon and think through the challenges and opportunities that the coming years are likely to bring.

“America’s Prospects: Promise and Peril” examined demographic, economic, and political trendlines in American life. The panel included Karlyn Bowman of the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, Glenn Hubbard of the Columbia Business School, Henry Olsen of the Ethics and Public Policy Center (EPPC), and Kristen Soltis Anderson of The Daily Beast. Bradley Prize recipient, EPPC Hertog Fellow, and National Affairs editor Yuval Levin moderated.

Bowman summarized America’s “moving target of demographics” -- including racial and ethnic changes, geographical differences, and the decline of religiosity. Hubbard said the American economy is in a period of stagnation and argued for policies aiming for “investment, innovation, and inclusion.”

Olsen recommended that policymakers pay attention to a particular segment of the population that is being particularly impacted by this stagnation: the middle class. Those who craft and propose policies offering the middle class “comfort, dignity, and respect” will meet with political success, according to Olsen.

And saying that Millennials are “a generation worth fighting for,” Anderson noted that conservatives’ and Millennials’ values coincide on the importance of hard work, education, family, and individual social responsibility.
